Biography

Melusi Majojo is a corporate and commercial lawyer with a specialised focus on transactional tax advisory and project finance. He advises domestic and international clients on M&A, corporate structures, and cross-border investments, with particular experience in mining, energy and infrastructure sectors across multiple jurisdictions.

Core Practice Areas

Corporate & Commercial Law

- Advises on business formations to its listing on the stock exchange, joint ventures, corporate restructurings, and shareholder agreements. Manages end-to-end M&A transactions, including due diligence, deal structuring, and post-acquisition integration.

Tax Law & Advisory

- Provides strategic tax planning and compliance guidance for corporations and financial institutions. Expertise includes structuring transactions for tax efficiency, advising on VAT, transfer pricing, withholding taxes, and managing tax aspects of mergers, acquisitions, and corporate reorganisations.

Project & Corporate Finance

- Represents borrowers, lenders, and sponsors in financing transactions. Experienced in drafting and negotiating facility agreements, security packages, and project finance documents for mining, energy, and infrastructure projects.

Experience

- Assisted clients in the acquisition of mining assets and the drafting of related commercial and off-take agreements.
- Advised foreign investors on corporate structuring, entry strategies, and regulatory compliance in Zimbabwe, Botswana, Zambia, and across other foreign jurisdictions.
- Provided tax due diligence and structuring advice for multi-jurisdictional mergers and acquisitions.
- Represented clients in high-value commercial and shareholder disputes related to investments and corporate governance.
